

School of Music

CEAIT

The Center for Experiments in Art, Information, and Technology (CEAIT) is a faculty, interdisciplinary, research and performance activity in which applications of new, interactive technologies in performance and arts information processing are developed. The presence of CEAIT at CalArts provides a stimulus for high-level thinking and exploration. Major projects in computer music software, performance interface technology, and telecommunications arts have been undertaken and many of these have been disseminated widely outside of CalArts.